

Didactic Lecture Series

The PCCM Lecture Series is held at noon on Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday during the summer months and on Tuesday only from September through June. During the summer, the curriculum focuses on important practical clinical topics, which are designed to rapidly expand the new fellows' knowledge base and reinforce that knowledge of the more senior fellows. Faculty for these lectures include members of the Pulmonary, Critical Care, Sleep Medicine and Allergy division, physicians from other divisions within the Department of Medicine and also from the surgical subspecialties, such as neurosurgery, cardiovascular surgery, and trauma. Some lecture material is presented on an annual basis, while other lectures are given every third year. Lecture material is available electronically to fellows in the program via the UNMC Intranet.
