

Journal Club

Fellows are responsible for presenting a Journal Club once per year. The format is different from the Literature Review in that they select one article and dissect it completely, including a review of the statistics and the study methods. They are also asked to answer the question as to how this particular article will change their practice of medicine.