University of Nebraska Medical Center

UNMC College of Medicine
Class of 1970
50th Anniversary

September 2021
Dear Members of the College of Medicine class of 1970:

Congratulations on the milestone of your 50th reunion (well, 51st to be more accurate). Please allow me to officially welcome you to the UNMC Half Century Club! It has been such an honor for me to meet members of the outstanding class of 1970 and to hear about your many accomplishments.

For those of you who joined us in Omaha for the reunion, I hope we were able to showcase our growing campus, that you had a chance to reconnect with old friends, and that you enjoyed the opportunity to gather in a place that holds many special memories for you and helped launch your career as a physician.

For those that are unable to attend, I hope you enjoy the chance to read through the class booklet of updates from your classmates sharing highlights of their life and career.

Over the last 50 years there have been many advances in medicine, society, and for the College of Medicine. The caliber of students that UNMC continues to produce is truly remarkable. The current medical students, and those who will come after them, all stand on the shoulders of alumni like your class who have dedicated their life to the service and practice of medicine.

The University and the College of Medicine are proud to call you amongst our graduates. We hope you are proud to call UNMC your alma mater.

Please stay in touch, and again, congratulations on this milestone of your 50 + 1 anniversary reunion!

Very sincerely,

Catherine Mello

Outgoing president oversaw Clarkson College’s transformation, helped triple its enrollment

By Rick Ruggles / World-Herald staff writer
Feb 1, 2016

Dr. Louis Burgher, president of Clarkson College since 2007, figures it’s time to turn the job over to a younger man.

Burgher, 71, will step down in August, turning over the presidency to Tony Damewood, a longtime administrator at Clarkson, the state’s oldest nursing college.

Burgher has overseen plenty of change at Clarkson, including tripling the college’s enrollment. Well-known in the metro area’s medical and business communities, Burgher will become president emeritus of Clarkson, working on tasks such as real estate, legislative relations and mentoring Clarkson’s leadership team.

His affection for Clarkson and his loyalty to the institution go beyond his job. His wife, Susan, graduated from Clarkson about 45 years ago. A daughter, Rachel, and a son-in-law, Clark Thompson, also earned degrees from Clarkson.

Clarkson’s president said he selected Damewood as his successor and the board agreed.

“Strictly speaking, it’s not retirement,” Burgher said last week. “I can only keep Tony in the wings so long. He’s a talented man and he’s earned his stripes.”

Since Burgher took over Clarkson’s presidency nine years ago, the college has:

- Increased enrollment from about 400 to close to 1,200
- Added doctoral programs in health care education and leadership and in nursing practice
- Developed online programs that have enrolled students from more than 30 states.
- Moved the library from the basement to the second floor and modernized it with digital resources.
- Developed simulation labs so students can practice on mannequins and other kinds of technology.

Clarkson has programs in nursing, health care business, medical imaging, professional development and other fields.

The Rev. Tom Hurley, chairman of the Clarkson board, said the panel accepted Burgher’s recommendation recently and unanimously appointed Damewood as his successor. The Clarkson faculty and staff were informed at a strategic planning session Jan. 18.

Before Burgher took over, morale was low. He had been chosen as a short-term replacement to right the institution after it had endured a rough stretch.

“The college was in a bit of disarray when he came on,” Hurley said. “Dr. Burgher came in and almost immediately put everybody at ease.”
Burgher engaged employees, heard their concerns, projected professionalism and had the school clicking again, Hurley said.

“He really values input from every employee that works for him,” said Rita VanFleet, coordinator of alumni relations at Clarkson. “He listens.”

VanFleet said some employees expressed confusion last year over how Burgher uses information from the college’s strategic planning sessions. She said Burgher appreciated the input, and at last month’s strategic planning day explained how he compiles and uses data and information from those sessions.

Jina Paul, whose husband has battled brain cancer for 10 years, said she sought Burgher’s advice after she joined the college six years ago.

“He has helped us connect with the right doctors and the right people to get treatment for my husband,” said Paul, the college’s marketing director. “He just has a big, caring heart.”

Burgher, a pulmonologist, served previously as medical director of pulmonary medicine and critical care at Clarkson Hospital for more than two decades and was president of Clarkson Hospital when it merged with the University of Nebraska Medical Center in 1997. He then became president of the combined organization, Nebraska Health System. Which eventually became Nebraska Medicine.

He also worked as medical director of Blue Cross Blue Shield of Nebraska in the late 1980s and served as president of the Greater Omaha Chamber of Commerce in the early 2000s.

Damewood, 48, called Burgher “the best boss I’ve ever had.”

Damewood, who has a Ph. D. in human capital management from Bellevue University, has worked at Clarkson about 16 years, including stints as admissions director, dean of enrollment management and vice president of operations.

“He’s been successful in all those roles,” Burgher said.

Damewood is popular with staff and management and “does not take himself seriously, and I see that as a strong quality.”

Burgher said president emeritus status will give him a chance to pursue other interests, including spending time with 11 grandchildren. The avid skier had knee-replacement surgery last year and has scheduled a family ski trip to Colorado this season.

His doctor might not approve, Burgher said. The Clarkson president is a good listener, but he doesn’t take everyone’s advice.

Robert M Elliott, MD, FAACS

Procedural Dermatology

- Fellow, American Academy of Cosmetic Surgery Fellow
- Royal Society of Medicine

Dr. Elliott grew up in Omaha, Nebraska, the fourth generation in medicine. He attended Johns Hopkins University Undergraduate, University of Nebraska College of Medicine for medical school, and University of Iowa Hospitals, Department of Dermatology for Residency. He was trained in hair transplantation in 1972, while a Dermatology Resident. Over the years, he invented many things which advanced the process of hair transplantation. He has always been at the forefront of the latest technology. You can rest assured that the techniques used at Elliott Hair have been and will continue to be the latest technology available. He has been a Diplomate of the American Board of Hair Restoration Surgery for 20 years (1997-2018).

Dr. Elliott began his interest in Endocrinology by reading the Merck Manual in his grandfather’s office (the Endocrinology section) when he was 9 years old. He has always been fascinated by the many effects that the endocrine system has in controlling the human body. He was trained in bioidentical hormone replacement by Dr. Neal Rouzier in the 1990s. He has practiced bioidentical hormone replacement for his patients since. He has recently been additionally certified by Dr. Gary Donovitz’s BioTE company for the insertion of pellets containing either testosterone or estradiol, which are an improved method of delivering constant blood levels of hormones (which exceed the ability of hormones delivered through the skin). He lives in Orange County and is the founder of Elliott Hair.

Dr. James Speichinger and wife Rene
imandjudyt@hotmail.com

Judy and I have 2 daughters, both now in their mid-40's. There are 5 grandkids, and 1 great grandson. Our older daughter Ange is here in AZ and married to a pharmacist. The younger daughter Carleen in is east Pennsylvania, and is a physician-administrator with UPMC Harrisburg (Pinnacle Health.)

After interning at Bryan hospital in Lincoln, I was taken into the Army July of 1971, and served 2 years as a GMO at the armed forces station in Fargo, N.D. We stayed following discharge, and practiced there the next 30 years. That began as a 4-man group, but I wound up with 300 partners as part of a multi-specialty group. During my work years, I served a couple of terms as chairman of the 35-person department of family medicine at Fargo Clinic/Meritcare, and a term on the Board of Directors for N.D Blues. During those years, I was an assistant clinical professor with the UND School of Medicine, and had 50 senior students do 1 or 2 month family medicine rotations through our office. I also supervised 2 nurse practitioners.

We retired to Mesa, AZ the end of 2002 and built a home in our retirement community, where we continue to live winters. We return to NE summers and have a lake home at Johnson Lake, near Lexington.

My retirement activities include woodworking (or sawdust making, depending on the day) and researching biblical things that interest me. My current wood project is to build each grandchild a custom live-edge coffee table for them to have someday. Judy and I are halfway through a 10-year funding for a UNMC scholarship.

I am a 3-time cancer survivor, and grateful for that, as well as a cardiomyopathy survivor.

The photo of us is from our 50th wedding anniversary, just over 2 years ago.

Van E. Vahle, M.D.
UNMC College of Medicine Class of 1970
2020 College of Medicine Alumni – Distinguished Alumnus Award Recipient

Dr. Van Vahle was born in Holdrege, Neb., and grew up in Alma, Neb. He attended the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and went on to medical school at the University of Nebraska Medical Center, graduating in 1970. He studied OB/GYN for an additional year before moving to Seward, Neb., his wife Rebecca’s (Becky’s) hometown, to join a family practice.

In his career, Dr. Vahle formed a strong bond with the Seward community and his patients; serving them throughout their lives, ranging from births to grave illnesses. His career stands out due to his generosity in opening his practice to countless UNMC medical students and residents as part of their education, and at times he would even welcome these students to stay at his home while they were in Seward.

Dr. Vahle’s intrinsic gift for teaching and mentoring medical students was something he committed to for over two decades, with not so much as a second thought. His volunteer teaching role had everything to do with how he felt about how he was treated at UNMC as a medical student; and the feeling that he wanted to pay back to the institution where he earned his medical degree.

He has been recognized for his commitment to family practice and educating generations of health professionals, some of which he even inspired to come back to smaller communities to practice. In 2009, he was recognized as the Nebraska Family Physician of the Year. In 2010, he was awarded the Outstanding Rural Physician of the Year Award in Nebraska. In 2011, he was recognized with the prestigious Theodore H. Koefoot Jr. M.D. Award for UNMC’s most outstanding preceptor in rural family medicine. The Koefoot Award recognizes the above-and-beyond service of volunteer faculty who are beloved by their students and consistently provide an outstanding educational experience. UNMC could not educate physicians to serve Nebraska without the assistance of volunteer faculty like Dr. Vahle.

In addition to his practice and teaching students and residents, Dr. Vahle has completed six trips to Haiti for medical services, teaching and outreach. Also in Seward, he was a member of the medical staff at Memorial Hospital, and also served a stint as chief of the medical staff there. While he is now retired from full-time practice, he still serves several hours each week as Medical Director at Concordia University working with students and student athletes. He has been involved in countless community organizations, including the local Chamber of Commerce and Kiwanis Club, and served as treasurer of the College of Medicine Alumni Association (now called the Alumni Council).

Dr. Vahle is humble, proud, and is representative of a generation of UNMC physician alumni who care deeply for the future of medicine, educating future health professionals, providing access to quality care across the lifespan, and serving others. He can best be described as a physician-statesman in service to others. His wife Becky is vice president at her family business, Cattle Bank & Trust in Seward. Dr. & Mrs.
Vahle have four grown children, Heather Dews, MD (a 1995 graduate of the UNMC College of Medicine); Van C. Vahle; Nicole Schneider, and Kourtney Vahle. They have six grandchildren that are their pride and joy.

In his free time, Dr. Vahle enjoys skiing, traveling, bee keeping, hunting, fishing, trains, remote control airplanes, antiquing, singing and band.

The Distinguished Alumnus Award is presented annually to a living graduate of the UNMC College of Medicine to recognize an individual’s noteworthy contributions to the University of Nebraska Medical Center, the medical profession and to the health of all people through patient care, basic and clinical research, teaching skills and/or health services administration. The recipient demonstrates the highest principles of the medical profession and serves as a role model for current and future medical doctors and health care professionals. This is the highest honor awarded from the UNMC College of Medicine’s Alumni Council.
