Midwest Student Biomedical Research Forum

March 4, 2023

Mike & Josie Harper Center for Student Life & Learning

Creighton University • 602 N 20th Street • Omaha, NE

The Midwest Student Biomedical Research Forum (MSBRF) provides medical and graduate students as well as other health professional students the opportunity to present their original biomedical research in either an oral or poster format.

Sponsored by the University of Nebraska Medical Center (UNMC) and Creighton University (CU), the forum offers an excellent opportunity for participants to receive critical review and recognition of their research from their peers and established scientists.

Financial awards are given in various categories.

MSBRF has grown into an important assembly of young scientists. The previous MSBRF, held in March 2022, was a tremendous success with more than 140 students from Midwestern medical schools presenting their research at the forum.
