Understanding Your Health Information

Each time you visit a hospital, clinic, physician, or other health care provider, a record of your visit is made. Typically, this health record contains your medical history, symptoms, examination and test results, diagnosis, treatment, care plan, insurance, billing, and employment information. This health information, often referred to as your health record, serves as a basis for planning your care and treatment and is a vital means of communication among the many health professionals who contribute to your health care. Your health information is also used by insurance companies and other third-party payers to verify the appropriateness of billed services.

Our Responsibilities

We are required by law to:

- Maintain the privacy of your health information during your lifetime and for 50 years following your death.
- Provide you with an additional current copy of our Notice upon request.
- Abide by the terms of our current Notice.

Health care team members will communicate with one another personally and through the health record to coordinate care provided. We will also provide your physician or subsequent health care provider with copies of various reports that should assist him or her in treating you in the future.

We will use and disclose your health information for payment purposes

For example, if you are brought in by ambulance, we may disclose your health information to the ambulance provider for its billing purposes.

We will use and disclose your health information for health care operations
