

READ/WRITE LEARNERS

CHARACTERISTICS

- Retain information better by reading and/or writing it
 - Prefer handouts, textbooks, their own notes, or printed slideshows
 - Like writing things out in their words
 - Don't mind and even benefit from taking notes

STUDY STRATEGIES

- Remember information well when it is written again and again
 - Take notes in class and then re-copy to study
 - Use unit objectives to guide your reading of the textbook. Read those sections multiple times and write notes on key concepts
 - Re-read material that is tough for you right before bed and again before the exam

THE EXAM

- Immediately "brain dump" tough concepts on your scratch paper
- Re-write questions you are struggling to understand
- Start listing things you do know about a certain topic if you aren't sure of the answer
- Read slowly and try to visualize your notes
