Division Spotlight: Medicine-Pediatrics

Internal Medicine-Pediatrics (Med-Peds) is a joint division of General Internal Medicine and General Pediatrics. There are currently four full time, Board-certified faculty members in the division and they each practice either ambulatory medicine, hospital medicine, or a combination of both.

The staff that practice hospital care do so both at Nebraska Medicine and Children's Hospital & Medical Center as part of the hospitalist teams. The staff that are ambulatory based strive to provide comprehensive care to patients across the age spectrum. This includes preventive care, chronic disease management, care for young adults with chronic medical diagnoses as they transition to adult providers and consultative care.

The Medicine-Pediatrics Residency Program at UNMC was founded in 2002. There are currently 8 residents in the program.

The residents complete four years of training, rotating between Internal Medicine and Pediatrics. They are eligible to take both the Pediatrics and Internal Medicine Board examinations upon completion of the program. Since its start, 10 of the 14 graduates of the program are practicing primary care. 5 of the graduates have completed fellowship training in either an Internal Medicine specialty, Pediatric specialty, or in both.

Since 2010, we have had 17 UNMC medical students Match into Medicine-Pediatrics programs across the country. In the current senior class, there are 4 students planning to go into the combined specialty.
